Ex-worker says she would have been fired if she hadn't fabricated entries before inspections

The News Journal

A former drug and alcohol counselor who worked for Correctional Medical Services at Gander Hill prison claims company officials ordered her to falsify documents so state inspectors would not pull the company's license to run a prison treatment program. Denise Rodriguez, who worked for Correctional Medical Services at the prison's drug and alcohol treatment program from 1999 to 2002, said she would have been fired if she refused orders to fabricate entries contained in inmate files.

"I was told to do progress notes on people who were not my clients," said Rodriguez, now a substance abuse counselor at the Latin American Community Center in Wilmington. "I told them I didn't want to falsify the charts."

The order, she said, came from a supervisor at CMS, one of the largest correctional health care companies in the country.

"I received a chart that wasn't touched for four months," Rodriguez said. "I was told to 'catch the chart up' using previous statements from the client."

If an inmate had admitted a cocaine addiction, for example, Rodriguez said she was told to write that the client was making progress overcoming the problem — without ever talking to the inmate about the addiction. Other documents were back-dated or altered with correction fluid, she claims.

Rodriguez, a 37-year-old mother of three, said she decided

The court may appoint any expert witnesses agreed upon by the parties, and may appoint expert witnesses of its own selection. An expert witness shall not be appointed by the court unless the witness consents to act. A witness so appointed shall be informed of the witness' duties by the court in writing, a copy of which shall be filed with the clerk, or at a conference in which the parties shall have opportunity to participate. A witness so appointed shall advise the parties of the witness' findings, if any; the witness' deposition may be taken by any party; and the witness may be called to testify by the court or any party. The witness shall be subject to cross-examination by each party, including a party calling the witness.

D.R.E. 801(d)(2)(E) tracks F.R.E. 801(d)(2)(E) except for the proviso added at the end of D.R.E. 801(d)(2)(E). The additional wording was deemed necessary to protect the rights of an alleged co-conspirator.

D.R.E. 801(d)(1)(A) and (C) track F.R.E. 801(d)(1)(A) and (C) track F.R.E. 801(d)(1) except the words "and was given under oath subject to the penalty of perjury at a trial, hearing or other proceeding or in a deposition" are deleted as they appear at the end of F.R.E. 801(d)(1)(A). This wording is consistent with the original draft of F.R.E. 801(d)(1) before amendment by Congress. U.R.E. 801(d)(1) is consistent with the adopted language for civil (but not criminal) cases. The words "made after perceiving him" as they appear at the end of F.R.E. 801(d)(1)(C) were deleted as being unnecessary. D.R.E. 801(d)(1) was amended in 2001 to reflect the correct standard for substantial admissibility of prior consistent and inconsistent statements of witnesses in criminal prosecutions set out in 11 Del. C. § 3507.

D.R.E. 801(d)(2)(E) must be applied in a manner consistent with Bruton v. United States, 391 U.S. 123 (1968).

This rule modifies D.R.E. 104(a) and (b) as to the establishment of a conspiracy. Evidence which would otherwise be hearsay, if offered for a limited purpose or if part of the res gestae, may be received in evidence. See D.R.E. 104 and 803 and Kreisher v. State, Del. Supr., 303 A.2d 651 (1973).
